This morning, Messrs. Acheson, Byroade and myself talked to the President at 11:00 o'clock. Under the circumstances, the President decided to sign a message jointly with Churchill, and we so advised Oliver Franks. At the same time, we submitted our ideas of a draft for the joint message and its annex.

SECT CM

I took a walk after lunch with Frank Wisner and Tracy Barnes.

Audrey arrived this afternoon, having driven over from Baltimore with Harry and Bessie Slack, and Audrey's friend, Liz Slack. I was [redacted] glad to see them all again and we had a drink together.

About 10:00 o'clock, E. and Peasie arrived from Staunton Hill with two hungry dogs. We had a late and gay dinner.

The two girls are spending the night with us.
